Online Programs Admissions

Ready to apply for admission to Antonelli College's online programs? Simply complete the Online Application form here, and one of our dedicated admissions representatives will contact you to walk you through the application process.

General Admissions Requirements

The minimum requirements for acceptance to all programs are:

Proof of graduation from high school, its equivalent or a GED. An applicant to any program who has not yet obtained a GED or who cannot provide proof of high school graduation may obtain GED testing information from the Admissions department. The applicant is encouraged to work with the Admissions department until the GED is satisfactorily completed.

Online Admissions Requirements

During the online admissions process, you will be asked brief questions that will indicate your level of preparedness to successfully participate in an online environment. Interview questions will cover how motivated, organized and self-directed you may be and how you prefer to learn new information. Such questions will help you recognize strengths and weaknesses as you prepare for an online program.

During the admissions process, you will participate in a readiness assessment administered online. The online readiness assessment will ask basic questions about using a computer, navigating the Internet and utilizing basic Web applications. A minimum score of 75% is required to proceed with the admissions process. If you do not make the minimum score requirement on the readiness assessment, remediation will be provided in the form of hard-copy and Web-based workshops called GROE – Getting Ready for Online Education. GROE is a one-week workshop that provides tutoring in basic computer usage, Internet navigation and basic computer applications.

Student Advising

Upon admission to one of our programs, each student is assigned a faculty advisor who remains with the student until graduation. Faculty advisors assist students with quarterly registration, monitor and encourage students' academic success, and assist with academic issues or concerns.

Registration for new students is done as part of the admissions process. All subsequent registration, beginning with quarter two registration, is completed through the faculty advisors. Students schedule an appointment with their advisors between the fifth and eighth weeks of the current quarter to register for the next quarter.

Adding or Dropping a Course

A course may be added up until the end of the first week of a quarter; after the first week, students may not add a course to their schedule. A course may be officially dropped through the second week of a quarter without academic penalty. If the student never attended any class sessions of that course, he/she may receive a refund. However, if he/she attended any class sessions, no refund will be given. A student who stops attending class without securing official withdrawal approval automatically receives an “F” in the course(s). If the student accumulates excessive absences before an official withdrawal of the course, he/she will receive an “F.”
